An artist, whether in music, painting or literature, is a shop-keeper in disguise. He hides his shop, and pretends it does not exist, but he is essentially a shop-keeper, and none the worse for that trade-alloy.

In like manner the professed shop-keeper has often a touch of the artist in him, which he tries to conceal in his turn.

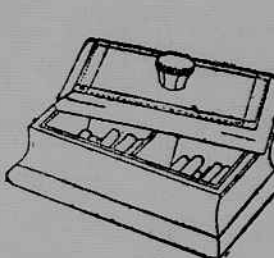

Today the artist and business-man are like matter and mind. In each there is an alloy of the other.
